- Each pair of words are homophones.
- They are words that are spelt differently but sound the same, such as 'cell' and 'sell'.
- The homophone pairs always share one letter in the word search, as shown right.
- Words can be found in absolutely every direction (including diagonally and backwards).
- If you need more help, ask your teacher!

Homophones Wordsearch

Puzzles & Brainteasers

- Teacher's Insights -

This wordsearch is much more than a simple wordsearch. It is designed to make this fun puzzle more than just a kids' timefiller by challenging students to find homophones.

You may be doing this as a standalone class or activity or as an addition to one of the pronunciation classes. In any case, make sure students understand what homophones are. They might exist in their own language!

Spanish:baya / vallaFrenchdans / dentPortuguese:assento / acentoChinese:攻击 attack / 公鸡 rooster

Some common examples in English are: pear / pair; four / for; son / sun.

Some homophones exist only in certain dialects. For example, 'court' and 'caught' are homophones in British English, but they are not in American English. On the other hand, we have 'metal' and 'medal' which are homophones in American English but they are not in British English. In this wordsearch, we have aimed to include words that are homophones in most or all dialects.

If students are having difficultly, the 22 pairs (in order of appearance of the first letter, starting at the top) are:

- 1. sighs / size take note of the /z/ sound
- 2. hear / here one of the most common examples
- 3. write / right 'r' and 'wr' sound the same in modern English
- 4. won / one $/w_{\Lambda}n/$
- 5. peace / piece note the long /i:/ sound
- 6. isle / aisle note the silent 's'
- 7. lessen / lesson note the schwa sound at the end /ə/
- 8. guest / guessed note that the 'ed' from the past tense of 'guess' sounds like a 't'
- 9. reign / rain note the silent 'g'
- 10. principle / principal one of the most common mistakes made by native speakers
- 11. allowed / aloud note that the 'ed' in 'allowed' does not make an extra syllable
- 12. ate / eight another common example
- 13. build / billed note silent 'u' in 'build'
- 14. wrap / rap like (3), 'r' and 'wr' sound the same
- 15. lynx / links note the 'x' and 'ks'
- 16. stake / steak especially for Spanish speakers who often pronounce 'steak' like 'stick'
- 17. flour / flower another common example
- 18. fiancée / fiancé a French loanword, the male and female version are homophones
- 19. shoot / chute 'chute' also comes from French which is why 'ch' is pronounced like 'sh' $\int \int dx$
- 20. bear / bare and not 'beer'!
- 21. past / passed like (8)
- 22. throne / thrown you could actually be thrown from the throne!

Have fun!
